MACNEIL, MOORE & CO.

An instance of eccentricity of a French jury occurred last month in Paris, when a man, who had deliberately cut a little girl's throat because she refused to give him a piece of bread she had in her possession, was let off with twenty years penal servitude. The jury unanimously came to the conclusion that there were extenuating circumstances. These jurymen are being complimented in the French press for their power of imagination rather than upon the rectitude of their judgment.
